

Dear polio eradication supporter,

On the eve of the Africa Cup of Nations (AFCON) Final, Speak Up Africa convened football leaders and global health champions to rally Africa to end polio and malaria. Footballer Luís Figo underscored the critical need to protect children from preventable diseases, polio survivor and football coach from Chad, Abakar Moussa Kalle, delivered a powerful testimony on the life-changing importance of vaccination, and pro breakdancer, Junior Bosila Banya, shared an inspiring speech and artistic dance performance. Throughout AFCON, renowned African footballers also teamed up with the Global Polio Eradication Initiative (GPEI) for the Kick Out Polio campaign, where they called on government leaders, families, and communities, to step up efforts to vaccinate every child against polio. With champions like these raising their voices, we can accelerate progress to end polio in Africa and around the world.

Reaching Children in Pakistan

In Pakistan, new child-friendly vaccination points are helping reach missed children with lifesaving vaccines. The Immunity Express initiative is complementing house-to-house vaccinations by establishing visible, fun, vaccination points, that resemble community fairs. In April and May 2025, 468 previously missed children were successfully vaccinated through this complementary community outreach approach. Learn more about this exciting initiative. [\[More\]](#)

Ethiopia Delivers Over 26 Million Vaccines to Children

Ethiopia's national polio vaccination campaign marked a major milestone, reaching more than 26 million children across all regions with lifesaving polio vaccines. To strengthen population immunity against the virus, the campaign co-administered bivalent oral polio vaccine (bOPV) with the novel oral polio vaccine type 2 (nOPV2). This vaccination strategy will help close immunity gaps and accelerate progress towards ending variant polio transmission across the country. [\[More\]](#)
